Good Enough for Us.

We believe the world is a good place and is growing better. This world began with a garden and is to end with a garden. It's a pleasant place to live in and if we had been consulted as to which of the stars we should choose for a habitation, we could not have done better than to select this. We have always been glad we got aboard this planet. It just suits us. To our mind the very best color in the universe for the sky is blue; the very best shade for grass is green, and the very best for water is a crystalline flash. The mountains are just high enough for me, the valleys just low enough, the rivers just swift enough.
The human face is most wonderfully adapted for its use with sunshine in its smile and tempest in its frown; with two eyes, one more than necessary, so that if one is put out we still may see the beautiful things God has placed around us, with one nose, most admirably arranged to take in the sweet perfumes of earth.

Art, even at its best, may be justly criticized, but where is the blasphemer who would dare criticize the arch of the sky? the crest of a wave or the flock of fleecy clouds that the shepherd wind is driving over the pastures of the sky.
There is only one dissonant to a thousand harmonies. There is a whole sky full of robins to one hooping night owl, and to every destructive torrent there are hundreds of placid streams with water lilies anchored at their banks, and stars laying bright reflections to sleep in their bosoms.—Ex.

The Youth's Companion Is for Everybody.

Of course, if you are too young to read, or so old you have forgotten how, you may not enjoy The Youth's Companion.
That is rather a sweeping statement, however, for hosts of children live to have the stories and jingles of the Children's Page read to them. There is many a grandfather and grandmother whose eyes are dim who like nothing better than to sit and listen to The Companion stories and articles. Many a blind person, and even those who in addition can neither speak nor hear have been cheered by The Companion, its contents having been communicated to them through the finger-tips of friends. The reading of The Youth's Companion is a pretty sure cure for all kinds of loneliness.
Robinson Crusoe would have been a happier man if he could have had his Companion Thursday as well as his man Friday. Just send for the Prospectus for 1912 and sample copies of the paper.

We think you will agree, when you have read them, that no other paper gives quite so much of such a high quality as The Companion, and it costs only $1.75 now for the 12 weekly issues.
On January 1, 1912, the subscription price will be advanced to $2.00.

The new subscriber receives a gift of The Companion's Calendar for 1912, in ten colors and gold, and all the remaining issues of 1911 free from the time the subscription is received.

Things To Live For.

Very few men who have striven to live their own lives without identifying themselves with some cause which will last after they are gone have maintained their purpose unbroken through adversity. The man who believes in himself alone is usually putting his trust on a fragile support.
Sure and permanent achievement belong to him who lives for something outside of himself, whether it be his country, his principles or his faith.
The more a man knows of life, the more he feels the need of having things outside of himself to live for. He needs friends, he needs traditions, he needs ideals. These he must have, in order to give him stability of purpose and clearness of vision, to steady him in the hour of defeat and to supply the hoped added strength for the contests yet to come. These he must have, in order to make the end itself seem worth while.—President Hadley of Yale.

CORN CLUB.Let Our Madison Boys Get Ready.

That Kentucky can increase her yield of corn to a great extent is shown by the records which have been made by the boys corn growing clubs in many counties of the State. By applying modern and scientific methods to the growing of corn, five boys in Wayne county succeeded in growing more than 100 bushels of corn to the acre. One boy grew 112 bushels.

There are more than 7,000 boys interested in the corn-growing contests.
M. C. Rankin, Commissioner of Agriculture, says the corn growing contests will be brought to a close the last of the month and the county clubs will hold their meetings during November, when the cash prizes will be awarded to the boys who have made the best showing. The second annual State Corn Show will be held in Lexington in January. Liberal premiums, especially in the Junior Department, for boys over ten years of age and under sixteen, will be given in the contests. The show will continue from January 2 to 5, 1912, and anyone wishing to make an entry can get the premium list and rules of the show by writing to Free Railroad Trip to Cincin-nati, Ohio.

A. E. Burkhardt, the International Fur Merchant, who is making Cincinnati, Ohio, famous as one of the world's great fur centers, extends an invitation to all the citizens of Richmond and Madison county who intend to purchase furs for this season, to visit Cincinnati, Ohio, and inspect his enormous plant, where furs are manufactured and sold direct "From Trapper to Wearer," thus eliminating all "middlemen's" profits.
They are the largest purchasers of raw fur skins in this country, being exporters, importers and manufacturers, and their low prices on furs of all styles and varieties for women's wear are positively beyond any possibility of competition. This is the generous proposition he makes.

Go to Cincinnati, Ohio, look over A.
E. Burkhardt's enormous stock in the two six-story buildings at the corner of Main street and Third avenue, select just what you want, and the cost of your railroad fare—for both ways—will be paid by the firm, providing it does not amount to more than 10 per cent (10 per cent) of the purchase price of the article. All goods are marked in plain figures, and you need not mention that you wish your railroad fare refunded until after making your purchase.

We advise our readers to take advantage of this liberal offer. 21-21

The Farmers Ought to Raise Sugar.

That the American public can forever deliver itself from the peril of high sugar prices, is the opinion of Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Agriculture, who says the great remedy lies in the production of beet sugar in America.
Sugar production is increasing at a remarkable rate, owing to the profit to the farmer and the increasing demand for the finished product.

He said beet factories could operate to advantage in connection with the dairy industry, in that the refuse from the best sugar plants makes excellent feed for dairy cattle. In his opinion the American farmer can raise enough sugar to supply the world. He said:

"We ought to make our own sugar in this country, and this has been my theory ever since I went into the Department of Agriculture. Drought in Germany or revolution in Cuba could bring no panic to the American housewife if the American farmer seized his opportunity. Relief is even now in sight. When I went into the department the production of the entire country was 20,000 tons and now it is more than 200,000 tons."

"Beet sugar is as satisfactory as cane sugar from the housewife's standpoint and the crop is one of the most profitable."

"The development of the sugar beet industry upon better farming, Twenty tons an acre can be grown by good farming. The present average in America is 10 tons. I have repeatedly said that if we could get the average up to 15 tons we could take the duty off and defy the foreign crop. But we must wait until the farmers know how."

Secretary Wilson has been experimenting with a seed which, he hopes, will be so perfect that there shall be but one germinating point per seed, thus eliminating the labor of thinning the crop, for the present seed has from one to five germinating points.

This is on a green city boy who wanted to show his gallantry. He called on a maiden a few nights ago and valiantly offered to brave the darkness of the back yard to bring a bucket of water. He reached the yard all right, set the bucket down, and turned a crank vigorously for several minutes.
His efforts met with failure and he returned to the house with the statement that the pump was out of fix. On inspection it was found he had set the bucket down by a wash tub, and had been busy turning a clothes wringer.—
